A Message from the Director

The Ministry of Education aims at improving the quality of life of all citizens through the development of knowledge, skills, attitudes and dispositions that would enable them to successfully adapt to the changing world. In keeping with this strategic direction, the Curriculum Planning and Development Division is pleased to present the revised Secondary School Curriculum. The attainment of the Value Outcomes for children as articulated in the Mission Statement of the Ministry of Education is the focus of the curriculum. To this end, nine Curriculum Guides and complementary Teachers' Guides have been developed to support the teaching and learning process.

The revised curriculum has been designed by educators to empower students to meet the rapidly changing demands of life in the 21st century, while ensuring that they acquire the prerequisite knowledge, skills and experience essential for continuing education. The curriculum advocates a more student-centered approach to teaching, and the provision of learning opportunities that are authentic, relevant and respectful of diverse learning needs and interests.

We have seen significant innovations in the use of technology in education, the need for a greater focus on morals and values and increased acquisition of life skills. There is no doubt that further shifts will take place in the coming years. The challenge for educators is to find ways to make teaching and learning inclusive, flexible and responsive to societal needs as we embrace the changes that are intended to benefit all learners.

The design of the revised curriculum documents was research-driven, based on contemporary educational theory and reflective of international best practice. These documents are intended to serve as a foundation for the development of instructional programmes to be implemented at the lower secondary level.

The Curriculum Planning and Development Division is confident that the revised Curriculum and Teachers' Guides for Forms 1–3 will contribute significantly to enhanced teaching and learning experiences in all secondary schools thus ensuring that our young graduates will be academically balanced, healthy and growing normally, well-adjusted socially and culturally, emotionally mature and happy and able to achieve their full potential, consistent with our mission for education in Trinidad and Tobago.

Acknowledgments

The Ministry of Education wishes to express its sincere appreciation to all those who contributed to the secondary curriculum revision process from 2013 to 2014.

- Officers of the Divisions of Educational Services, Information, Communication and Technology Division (ICTD), Schools Supervision, Student Support Services, and Educational Research and Evaluation who provided support as needed.
- The Programme and Projects Planning and Management Unit (PPPMU) which supplied resources.
- Microsoft Trinidad and Tobago for supplying an ICT management tool for collaboration among key stakeholders.
- The Principals of schools who acceded to the request for the assistance of teachers in the writing and field testing activities.
- Teachers throughout the secondary school system who responded to requests for comments and other forms of feedback.
- Curriculum Planning and Development Division which led the curriculum development sub-component and coordinated and effected the curriculum development and revision activities.

The National Curriculum for
Forms 1 - 3

National Curriculum Framework

Introduction

This curriculum framework is intended to outline the nature and purpose of the curriculum as well as the parameters for consistent curriculum implementation throughout secondary education in Trinidad and Tobago. The document sets out the principles that govern and guide teaching and learning. The term ‘curriculum’ is used in this document to describe the sum total of the planned experiences which occur within that environment and was designed to foster children's learning and development. These include activities and events which either directly or indirectly impact upon the child.

A clear understanding of the nature, role and function of the national curriculum for Trinidad and Tobago is a critical part of the whole positive transformation of education to provide a seamless pathway for all students through the system of teaching and learning. For Trinidad and Tobago, the National Curriculum Framework becomes the basis for all education and curriculum decision-making, including the design, development and implementation strategies for a new system of teaching and learning covering those foundation years of education. The statement of outcomes for students are a key part of this education framework and forms the basis for all subsequent decisions about teaching and learning, content, pedagogy and assessment. These must work towards fulfilling the vision for successful students and future citizens of our nation.

In order to establish common ground and ensure that the curriculum can be implemented as designed, a set of foundational principles needs to be established. This National Curriculum Framework establishes a consistent foundation for learning that is undergirded by the Ministry of Education vision, mission and the five value outcomes for all children.

The National Curriculum must ensure that all curriculum activity, including implementation at the classroom level, functions within the guiding principles of education established by the Ministry of Education. The guiding principles of the Ministry of Education (Education Sector Strategic Plan 2011-2015 pg. XI) were developed after extensive stakeholder dialogue and sound analysis of the current societal and national requirements.

For an effective and relevant twenty-first century process of teaching and learning, these guiding principles are an indicator that the Ministry of Education seeks to place education in Trinidad and Tobago alongside, if not ahead of international best practices. The Ministry of Education has established an Education Sector Strategic Plan 2011-2015 to achieve the goals of quality, innovative, challenging, flexible education for all and has begun an investment in human and material resources to achieve this outcome in a purposeful and timely fashion.

Foundation of the National Curriculum

Curriculum development is informed by the vision and mission of the Ministry of Education. The design of revised curriculum documents for implementation at the classroom level is therefore guided by the principles and policies of the Ministry of Education. A forward-looking perspective on what all schools should be facilitating in terms of student achievement is guided by the national curriculum. There is equal clarity regarding a twenty-first century education system functioning to provide the highest standard of education. The regulatory and guiding principles for education provide the overarching national framework for education.

The Ministry of Education, Education Sector Strategic Plan: 2011-2015 and other policy documents establish the design framework for all components of the new curriculum. Principal among these are the vision, mission and the five (5) value outcomes established at the national level for all students which further guides the formulation of the desired and intended learning experiences for the classroom in the curriculum guide.

Vision of Ministry Of Education

The Ministry is leading a quality education system that responds to the diverse needs and requirements of 21st century learners, promotes inclusivity, seamlessness, equity and equality and contributes to human capital and sustainable development.

GORTT, Ministry of Education, Education Sector Strategic Plan: 2011-2015

The Mission statement is derived from the Vision of the Ministry Of Education. The Mission statement will guide the revision of the curriculum to meet the needs of the learners.

Mission of Ministry Of Education

To educate and develop children who are able to fulfil their full potential; healthy and growing normally; academically balanced; well-adjusted socially and culturally and emotionally mature and happy.

GORTT, Ministry of Education, Education Sector Strategic Plan: 2011-2015

Value Outcomes

An internal analysis of the education system, together with research conducted in international forums has shown that the curriculum is core to the development of innovative people. This curriculum is aimed at attaining the five value outcomes of the Ministry of Education that help to define standards of attainment for all secondary school students.

The Ministry of Education's overarching goal is to educate and develop children who are:

- Able to fulfil their full potential
- Academically balanced
- Healthy and growing normally
- Well-adjusted socially and culturally
- Emotionally mature and happy

Every core curriculum subject must facilitate the achievement of these value outcomes by all students. The core curriculum subjects, their content and the suggested teaching, learning and assessment strategies are the means to fulfil the holistic development of the student.

It is expected that by the end of secondary school education, students will achieve all five value outcomes in order to make informed choices and contribute to the needs of society.

The five value outcomes are described more fully below.

A. Children who will achieve their full potential.

1. Function with a purpose based on love, value, family life, service and aesthetic expression.
2. Understand and participate constructively in their career and vocational pathway.
3. Able to cope with daily challenges, set healthy boundaries and make wise social choices.
4. Productive achievers, role models with good work ethics.
5. Will function at their best with a strong sense of commitment to their interests and activities.
6. Optimize their God-given talents to advantage.
7. Enterprising and responsible in risk taking.
8. Recover quickly from setbacks and disappointments.
9. Achieve economic well-being and make a positive contribution to society.

B. Children who are adequately prepared educationally to fulfil their potential.

1. Prepared to participate in society as appropriate to their age.
2. Academically balanced to be productive (combination of appropriate skills and competencies).
3. Skilled in critical and creative thinking, problem-solving, visioning, thinking outside the box and receptive to new ideas.
4. Skilled in the use of current technology and the Internet (cyber wellness).
5. Proficient in a second language.

C. Children who are adequately developed socially and culturally.

1. Productive and have good self-image.
2. Enquiring, confident and strong among their peers, and emotionally secure, open, honest and emphatic in relationships.
3. Competent to interact and communicate with others, within different social settings and environments.
4. Patriotic and courageous in civic affairs and proud to be identified as members of the national and Caribbean Community.
5. Historically aware, including knowledge of our people.
6. Capable of informed participation in the democratic and political process.
7. Capable of functioning with good character and values in their culture.
8. Respectful of the law, authority, the rights of others, creative imagination in its different forms and of the right to divergent views.
9. Developed with interpersonal and language skills.
10. Environmentally aware, protective of the physical environment and demonstrates an understanding of sustainable development.
11. Able to lead, have good governance skills, are competent to respond to the challenges of new roles in multiple contexts and are able to manage conflict.
12. Humanely aware of the less fortunate and the disadvantaged and committed to contributing to the welfare of our community and country.
13. Functioning with an honest sense of family and community.
14. Proficient in dealing with daily conditions.
15. Skilled in finding a safe place to think and grow.

16. Confident in themselves, self-motivated, enterprising and pursue self-education and lifelong self-development and able to work independently and with others.
17. Capable of finding assistance if they are abused or neglected.
18. Spiritually aware with the emotional and intellectual resources to pursue their spiritual growth.
19. Appreciative of the contribution of the arts to daily life, cultural identity and diversity, locally, regionally and internationally.
20. Able to express themselves through the arts.

D. Children who are healthy and growing normally.

1. Secure and safe in their home, school, and community.
2. Physically fit, mentally alert, well nourished, and psychologically sound.
3. Active in exercise, sports, games and recreation.
4. Capable of wholesome interaction with peers.
5. Morally prepared for a productive life.
6. Adequately developed neurologically to overcome learning, speaking, hearing, focusing and memory or mobility challenges.

E. Children who are emotionally developed, mature and happy.

1. Able to enjoy daily life, have fun and express happiness and positive emotions.
2. Participants in entertainment and celebration.
3. Established in their peer group, satisfied with their life and able to achieve meaning in their lives.
4. Mature and able to become full-fledged, productive and enterprising citizens.

Education Policies That Impact on the Curriculum

Several policies from the Ministry of Education were taken into account for the revision of the Lower Secondary School Curriculum. These include the Education Sector Strategic Plan 2011-2015, the ICT policy and National Schools Code of Conduct. Three policies that have direct impact on the development and implementation of the curriculum are discussed.

Education Sector Strategic Plan 2011-2015

The Education Sector Strategic Plan purports a vision for education premised on guiding principles which informed the curriculum design and development process. They will provide reference points to ensure that the desired attributes of education are achieved. The guiding principles listed below are important components in the revised curriculum.

Principle	Elaboration
Student-Centred	The student is at the centre of everything we do.
Engaged Communities	We engage parents and families as the heart of students' lives and we support and acknowledge them as the primary guides and decision-makers for students. We engage members of local, regional and global communities as active contributors to student learning
Inclusive	We expect all students will learn in a welcoming environment regardless of place, culture or learning needs.
Proactive	We plan for a desired future, preventing problems instead of reacting to them.
Shared Responsibility	We acknowledge that education is everybody's business and therefore expect teachers, the school and education leaders to collaborate with other government and community organizations to foster student learning.
Innovative	We explore new learning opportunities through research, innovation and professional development to ensure continuous improvement of student learning.
	We enable meaningful and relevant learning through a range of opportunities

Flexible	appropriate to each student's development stage.
Equitable	We ensure that every student will have the benefit of high-quality learning opportunities.
Accountable	We explain to the citizens of Trinidad and Tobago the outcomes of our students and our use of funding.
Transformative Leadership	We believe that people with vision and passion can achieve great things. We therefore empower and inspire our staff and stakeholders to create positive and lasting changes in the education system.
Quality	We are committed to meeting our own quality standards that are driven by the requirements of our customers. Each of us takes charge to ensure that these standards are implemented in our individual areas of authority.
Teacher Empowerment	We create the environment for excellence in teaching practice that improves the learning of all students, deepens educators' content knowledge, provides them with research-based instructional strategies to assist students in meeting rigorous academic standards and prepares them to use various types of classroom assessments appropriately.

ICT in the Curriculum

The ICT Policy goals and objectives of the Ministry of Education are to:

- i. Ensure all stakeholders possess the critical requisite skills and competencies to use ICT in the education system as a tool to enhance learning and teaching, communication and research and to generate innovative processes;
- ii. Encourage innovative models of ICT use such as:
 - teacher education;
 - teaching;
 - learning; and
 - curriculum materials development
- iii. Harmonize activities, approaches and standards in the use of ICT within the Education System
- iv. Encourage critical and creative thinking, lifelong learning and social responsibility;

ICT in education in Trinidad and Tobago would create an educational system in which students leave schools as confident, creative and productive users of new technologies, including information and communication technologies and understand the impact of those technologies on society.

The Ministry of Education's ICT in Education Policy (pp. 28–29) refers to Curriculum Content and Learning Resources as:

- Curriculum and content must increasingly maximize the use of ICT.
- ICT must be integrated into the development and delivery of the curriculum.
- The ICT curriculum needs to be reviewed frequently in order to maintain its relevance.
- ICT integration and ICT competency measures across the curriculum shall be driven through the development and delivery of an ICT-infused curriculum.

ICT in education would create an environment that encourages creativity, innovation, critical thinking and decision making.

Inclusive Education Policy

The Ministry of Education is committed to “support the delivery of inclusive education in all schools by providing support and services to all learners and by taking appropriate steps to make education available, accessible, acceptable and adaptable to all learners.” An inclusive curriculum is acknowledged to be the most important factor in achieving inclusive education. In planning and teaching the school curriculum, teachers are therefore required to give due regard to the following principles:

- i. The National Curriculum Guides set out what most students should be taught at lower secondary school but teachers should teach the required knowledge and skills in ways that suit students' interests and abilities. This means exercising flexibility and drawing from curricula for earlier or later class levels to provide learning opportunities that allow students to make progress and experience success. The degrees of differentiation exercised will depend on the levels of student attainment.

- ii. Varied approaches to teaching, learning and assessment should be planned to allow all students to participate fully and effectively. Account should be taken of diverse cultures, beliefs, strengths and interests that exist in any classroom and that influence the way students learn.

The Curriculum Development Process

The term 'curriculum' has several meanings, depending on the context and the perspective of curriculum theory that is applied to the definition. Most theories concur that there are four fundamental components within definitions of curriculum:

- Curriculum as the transmission of a body of knowledge.
- Curriculum as product - defined by the ends or achievements expected.
- Curriculum as process.
- Curriculum as praxis

This revised curriculum subscribes to an eclectic approach which is an amalgamation of the above definitions.

The foundation of the National Curriculum is also informed by a wealth of available curriculum theories and processes. The major forces that influence and shape the organization and content of the curriculum include:

1. Educational philosophy and understandings about the nature of knowledge
2. Society and culture
3. The learner and learning process
4. Learning theories
5. The nature and structure of subject matter to be learned

These areas represent the foundation on which the national curriculum is revised. These areas will inform educational goals with the aim of developing a coherent, culturally focused and dynamically evolving curriculum.

This revised curriculum displays a learner-centred design with philosophical assumptions that are mainly constructivist. It seeks to educate and develop children who are able to fulfil their full potential; healthy and growing normally; academically balanced; well-adjusted socially and culturally and emotionally mature and happy.

The curriculum process was developed through four stages:

Stage 1 of the curriculum development process consisted of consultations with stakeholders from a cross-section of the national community. The Ministry of Education conducted one national consultation on the secondary education curriculum, along with 3 joint-district consultations and one in Tobago. Consultations were held with representatives from the various divisions of the Ministry of Education, Students, denominational and local school boards; members from the primary and secondary principals association, members of the business community, Unions, representatives from tertiary institutions, representatives from Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs), parents and special interest groups. These key stakeholders provided valuable information which helped to inform curriculum change to better prepare students to meet the needs of society.

Stage 2 of the process involved the analysis of findings from opinions, experts, relevant documents and best practices which informed the design of the revised curriculum to enable a set of desirable outcomes and essential competencies to be possessed by all students.

Data from different sources together with other policy documents were examined and a unanimous decision was taken for the following to be core:

English Language Arts, Mathematics, Science, Visual and Performing Arts (VAPA), Physical Education and Sports, Spanish, Technology Education, Information and Communication Technology (ICT) and Social Sciences which comprise History, Geography, Social Studies, Religious Education and Health and Family Life Education (HFLE). In order to develop the student holistically, emphasis was also placed on ICT integration, Sexuality and Sexual Health Education, Health and Wellness, Literacy and Numeracy.

At Stage 3, subject experts produced the revised curriculum documents. For each subject, a Curriculum Guide and Teachers' Guide were developed. Teachers with specific subject or curriculum development skills from schools were also included in the creation of these curriculum documents. The outputs of this phase included learning outcomes specific to each subject that contribute to the fulfilment of the national outcomes; subject content; teaching, learning and assessment strategies to support the outcomes. As part of the development process, the curriculum was validated by feedback solicited from Universities and other key stakeholders. Continued consultations with key stakeholders provided feedback to inform curriculum evaluation and further validation.

These curriculum documents will provide learning opportunities, teaching and learning strategies, assessment strategies and instructional plans which will contribute to the full potential of the students.

Stage 4 involved the implementation of the revised curriculum. Implementation of the curriculum is a dynamic process, requiring collaboration of the curriculum coordinators / officers and teachers. In implementing, teachers are expected to use the formal curriculum, as described in the curriculum guides, to plan work and teach in a manner that accomplishes the outcomes described. Teachers are expected to translate those outcomes into units of study, determining the appropriate sequence and time allocation according to the learning needs of their students. Although the curriculum documents provide sample teaching and assessment strategies, it is also the role of the teacher to select and use sound teaching practices, continually assessing student learning and systematically providing feedback to curriculum teams for use in revising and improving the guides.

The revised curriculum documents will be implemented initially for Forms 1 then at the Form 2 level and finally at the Form 3 level. Curriculum officers responsible for specific subject areas will monitor and support teachers in the implementation of this curriculum through school visits.

A curriculum development system provides support for the tasks of curriculum implementation. The system advocated by the Ministry of Education involves stakeholders, specialist curriculum officers, principals, heads of departments and teachers, each with specific roles and responsibilities. Some of these are outlined in the table below.

System Component	Members	Role
Strategic Executive Team (SET) of the Ministry of Education	Consultants, Advisors	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Advise on curriculum policy, goals and standards.
Curriculum Planning and Development Division (Head Office and District-based)	Curriculum officers	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Plan and develop curriculum. • Provide leadership in identifying curriculum goals and determining the process for development of curriculum materials. • Lead writing teams (which include teachers). • Monitor implementation. • Provide teacher support. • Facilitate teacher professional development for curriculum implementation. • Advise on processes and materials for effective implementation and student assessment. • Evaluate curriculum.
School Curriculum Management Team	Principal/Vice Principal and Heads of Departments	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Make major decisions concerning the school curriculum, such as assigning resources. • Provide guidelines for Instructional Planning Teams.
Instructional Planning Teams/School Instructional Committees	Teachers	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Cooperate on tasks necessary for effective implementation, such as: yearly work plans, units of study, development of materials to individualize the curriculum, identification and development of learning materials, student assessment and evaluation.

At the school level, the curriculum refers to all the learning and other experiences that the school plans for its students. It includes the formal or written curriculum, as well as the informal curriculum which is comprised of other developmental opportunities provided by the school such as those offered by student clubs, societies and committees and sporting organizations (e.g. cricket team, debating society, Guides, Cadets).

The School Curriculum Management team develops a School Curriculum that must be in alignment with the National Curriculum. The School Curriculum Management team usually consists of the Principal and/or Vice Principal and Heads of Department. The duties of the School Curriculum Management team include the development of school culture, goals, vision and curriculum in alignment with the national curriculum and culture. It also provides support for curriculum work and performs evaluation functions.

In providing support for curriculum work, the Management team may, for instance:

- encourage teachers to identify challenges and try new ideas;
- develop timetables to allow for development of curriculum materials, for example, yearly plans, units, instructional materials;
- ensure availability of learning materials;
- provide instructional leadership;
- ensure that appropriate strategies are formulated to promote student success.
- monitors the curriculum (using, for example, observation, test scores, student books, formal and informal discussions with different stakeholders);
- assesses the hidden curriculum (including discipline policies, fund allocation, physical environment);
- evaluates the school programme of studies.

The roles of instructional teams are described below:

- Develop/Revise/Evaluate work programmes
- Determine resource needs

- Identify/Develop instructional materials
- Conduct classroom action research
- Integrate and align curriculum
- Identify and develop appropriate assessment practices
- Develop reporting instruments and procedures (student and teacher performance)
- Keep records

The roles of teachers are described below:

- Develop/Revise instructional programme
- Individualize curriculum to suit students' needs and interests
- Develop/Evaluate/Revise unit plans
- Develop/Select appropriate learning materials
- Select appropriate teaching strategies to facilitate student success
- Integrate the curriculum as far as possible, and where appropriate
- Select appropriate assessment strategies
- Monitor/Assess student learning and keep records
- Evaluate student performance
- Evaluate classroom programmes
- Conduct action research
- Collaborate with colleagues

The revised lower secondary curriculum for Trinidad and Tobago provides every opportunity for the child to learn, master new important skills and develop attributes and values that are critical to their role as emerging productive, caring and responsible citizens.

The Core Curriculum Subjects

The core curriculum subjects are those for which every student is required to demonstrate achievement of the stated outcomes in Forms 1–3.

A minimum time allocation is recommended for each core subject. The principal, as instructional leader of the school, will make the final decision as to time allocation, according to the needs of the students and the resources available at any given time.

The table below shows the suggested minimum number of periods per subject based on:

- A 6 day cycle
- 7 periods per day
- Approximately 40 minutes per period

Subject	No. of periods per week

Information and Communication Technology (ICT) Infusion into the Curriculum

Information and Communication Technology (ICT) infused in the curriculum is intended to ultimately transform teaching and learning to meet the needs of twenty-first century learners and better prepare them to be global citizens. The use of ICT integration initiatives should support the development of critical skills such as knowledge construction, problem-solving, critical thinking, collaboration, communication, innovation, inquiry, digital literacy and entrepreneurship.

ICT covers all the technologies used for the handling and communication of information. These technologies include:

- Computers/laptops
- Storage devices (e.g. flash drives, CDs)
- Mobile devices/handheld devices
- Satellite communication
- Audio & Audio visual systems
- Cloud computing
- Email/messaging

In addition to the above named technologies, there is a generation of Web 2.0 tools that facilitate a more engaging and interactive learning experience in the classroom. The following is a small sample that may be useful to teachers and students:

- Social networking sites (including educational social networking platforms like Edmodo)
- Blogs, wikis, forums
- Photo and Video sharing tools (e.g. Flickr, Instagram, Youtube)
- Cloud storage (e.g. Skydrive, Dropbox, Deego)
- Digital Story telling tools (e.g. Story Maker)
- Social bookmarking and annotation tools (e.g. Diigo)
- Inspirational tools and lessons (e.g. TED Talks/Ed)
- Screen casting/screen capture tools (e.g. Jing)

- Word cloud generators (e.g. Wordle, Tagxedo)

The process of integrating ICT into the curriculum requires that administrators and teachers find ways to incorporate ICTs into teaching and learning to maximize educational outcomes, making learning relevant and meaningful. This integration can only be successful if it is carefully planned, managed, monitored and evaluated. Additionally, appropriate measures should be devised to provide support wherever needed according to the context of the school environment.

It is hoped that educators continue to be creative and resourceful, making full use of the resources that are available to them as they plan instruction.

Literacy across the Curriculum

Literacy is about more than reading and writing – it is about how we communicate in society. It is about social practices and relationships, about knowledge, language and culture. Literacy ... finds its place in our lives alongside other ways of communicating. Indeed, literacy itself takes many forms: on paper, on the computer screen, on TV, on posters and signs. Those who use literacy take it for granted – but those who cannot use it are excluded from much communication in today's world. Indeed, it is the excluded who can best appreciate the notion of "literacy as freedom". (UNESCO, Statement for the United Nations Literacy Decade, 2003–2012)

The revised lower secondary curriculum addresses the literacy needs of all learners as they interact with a variety of texts across the different subject disciplines. Research indicates that students who struggle have significant difficulty navigating mathematics, science and social sciences texts in which the language is expository, dense and full of difficult vocabulary (Allen 2000). This underscores the need for all teachers to support students' literacy development since literacy skills are needed if students are to access the entire curriculum.

Teachers of English address students' literacy by teaching the skills of listening, speaking, reading and writing in an explicit and systematic manner. The goal of literacy instruction is to improve learning by building students' comprehension and communication skills. Teachers of other content areas have the responsibility of extending students' literacy instruction by teaching the subject-specific literacy of their respective subject areas. Literacy is embedded in every subject so teachers must create literacy-rich activities for students that will strengthen and support subject-specific learning.

The table below illustrates generic literacy activities that content area teachers and students can engage in to build the core skills of listening, speaking, reading, writing and representing as the curriculum is enacted in all subjects.

Failure to acquire literacy skills for learning across subject disciplines is a major risk which the revised curriculum seeks to address. Literacy lies at the heart of student understanding and achievement. For the curriculum to be enacted in a meaningful manner that benefits all students, effective subject-specific literacy teaching is critical. Each content area requires skills for effective reading and studying of text materials. To support literacy development, content area teachers must know how to teach the skills so that students can bridge existing gaps. Literacy skills are essential for good communication, critical thinking and problem-solving at school and for success in life beyond school.

PART 2

The English Language Arts Curriculum

Introduction

The revised English Language Arts curriculum builds on the previous edition by promoting the development of the learner through focused skills building in language, literature and literacy. The learner is at the centre of language education as reflected in all the outcomes for listening, speaking, reading, writing and media literacy. The curriculum addresses, through an integrated approach to the development of these skills, the changing ways adolescents learn English as well as the challenges they face when learning this language. Language learning in the twenty-first century is intended to empower young persons to contribute in meaningful ways within school and within the larger society. Since language has the power to transform lives, students who are challenged by language need tangible and substantial support. The English Language Arts curriculum acknowledges this challenge and attempts to provide support to teachers who implement the programme and interact directly with diverse learners within the regular classroom. This support is evident in the teaching of grammar related to the language skills being targeted as illustrated in the accompanying Teacher's Guide and the Reading Literacy Support Guide.

There is alignment between the new Primary English Language Arts curriculum introduced from September 2013 and that of the revised lower secondary school curriculum. The concentrated focus on language skills development in explicit ways is continued as is the overall focus on building students' literacy skills. Additional attention is placed on critical language awareness so that learners develop the ability to interrogate the Standard English and English Creole languages and investigate how language is used for particular purposes. The learner also builds appreciation for the creative use of language for wholesome pleasure through the study of literature of the region and that of the wider world.

The lower secondary curriculum builds on the primary curriculum with regard to continuous assessment of language learning. The compilation of a Language Portfolio is new. This portfolio will contain evidence of student learning of listening, speaking, reading, literary appreciation and media literacy skills across the three years. The portfolio will also reflect a process approach to the teaching of the discrete communication skills of listening, reading and writing. This ensures that both process and product will be taught and assessed. At the primary level, students are now in the practice of using writing portfolios that illustrate and chart their writing development. At the secondary level, the demonstration of language skill for writing development, the creation of a portfolio (electronic or print) is advised. This is one significant way in which, for language learning and assessment, students will make use of the technologies that have been provided by the Ministry of Education as learning tools.

The revised lower secondary English Language Arts curriculum is also aligned with and provides the foundation on which language learning can be continued at the upper secondary which culminates with the assessment of objectives stated in the CSEC English syllabus. At the end of the English language programme experienced at secondary school, it is intended that the planned curriculum outcomes and the Value Outcomes for Children articulated in the corporate strategic plan of the Ministry of Education will be achieved.

Philosophy

Language helps to create the lived reality of human beings. The possibilities of particular world views are made manifest through language and within language. All human beings must therefore be given the opportunity to become effective users of language in order to support their ability to realize all dimensions of their human potential, to function well in an ever changing world, and to maintain satisfying social relationships. They must be given opportunities to learn language skills by interacting with others in meaningful contexts to carry out personal and social functions in an emotionally mature manner that will enhance their lives, contribute to their social and cultural adjustment and help them to assume the responsibilities of citizens of a democratic society. The English Language Arts curriculum must continue to be perceived by students as being relevant to their lives and cultures which undergo constant transformation; it must also satisfy their needs and interests and pave the way for students to achieve their full potential.

English Language Arts education, therefore, should:

- facilitate a variety of forms of effective communication with others;
- allow entrance and effective participation in other speech communities;
- provide the fundamental basis for development of competence in other subject areas;
- build aesthetic appreciation, for language itself and for other art forms;
- develop critical language and literacy awareness;
- prepare students for interaction in different contexts;
- empower students with life skills;
- prepare students for the world of work.

Vision

All students will acquire competence in the English Language Arts. Students will be able to communicate effectively in Standard English and in other dialects, and out of a strong sense of values, use language in pursuit of lifelong goals and in participating as informed members of society.

Rationale

The teaching of English allows opportunity to impact significantly on student learning across the entire curriculum. English is the language of education: of teaching, learning and assessment, in Trinidad and Tobago. Building skills and competencies in Standard English is a priority since English is the international language for education, trade and for communication on the Internet for billions across the globe. The reality of the English Creole, a vibrant language of the heart for most learners of English, is acknowledged and valued as English is targeted. Students of our Republic are simultaneously, citizens of the larger world and in this age of technology and rapid communication, they must be empowered to use language to impact on the world. English provides them with the requisite tools for effective communication nationally, regionally and globally. Language and literacy skills acquisition also build students' confidence and trigger increased improvement in learning. In particular, proficiency in English lays the groundwork for students to develop creative and critical thinking and problem solving skills necessary for nation building in the twenty-first century.

At the Secondary school, English Language Arts is at the core of the curriculum. Additionally, English literacy is embedded alongside the literacies to be developed in every subject. Teachers of English lead the drive for improvement in performance in English and support the larger academic performance initiative across the core subjects. General understanding of English literacy can facilitate learning if focus is placed on the communication skills of speaking, listening, reading, writing and representing. Those five literacy skills are critical since they allow students to engage fully with learning across the curriculum. It is reasonable to assert that English is indeed fundamental to students' understanding of their academic and personal selves as it is to their self-empowerment. Approaches to effective English Language teaching and learning are unlimited as education research indicates. The curriculum, including the accompanying Teacher's Guide, presents best practices in language education for each of the first three years at secondary school.

The revised national lower secondary English Language Arts curriculum builds on the former by continuing to promote skills development and focus on the learner as an active contributor to the process. The curriculum recognises that students learn at different rates and that their skills development will vary. The curriculum also recognises language learning as a recursive process that develops through exploration and engagement in ever-widening contexts. Active teaching is encouraged as specified in the learning outcomes for all of the skills: Listening, Speaking, Reading, Literary Appreciation, Writing and Media Literacy. The revised outcomes are indicative of the direction toward meaningful, active learning that is authentic and self-directed. Students investigate and explore topics as they analyse their learning experiences in English Language Arts. The revised English Language Arts curriculum has a strong critical language and literacy awareness built into it. Students must be empowered to interrogate language itself and to develop their critical consciousness. In so doing, they will be less vulnerable to subtle persuasion and hidden agendas of speakers and writers. This therefore has implication for how language and literacy are taught to adolescent learners.

Questions abound in any discussion on approaches advocated in a national curriculum. Why teach English alone? Why not teach English Creole as well as English? Why not use a second language approach to teaching English since it is not, for the majority of students, their first language? It is necessary therefore to underscore that both English Creole and English are valued in the curriculum. Both are legitimate languages impacting on learners as they attempt to learn English, learn about English and learn via English simultaneously! This is indeed an enormous task but not an impossible one. How teaching and learning occur in the classroom, how dynamic and engaging are the learning experiences planned are the determining factors. In learning English, students examine contexts of language usage and determine how meaning is shaped by a range of social factors. They also clarify their own language usage and better understand how speakers of English Creole are perceived. The study of English serves to build appreciation for English Creole which is itself a key aspect of our culture and dispel stereotypes and other negative assumptions about speakers of different regional Creoles. The study of English also builds appreciation for the English language.

Literature is an essential component of the English Language Arts programme. The study of literature leads to enhanced understanding of the three literary genres and to enjoyment of reading itself. An active, performance-based approach to teaching and learning across the three literary genres is promoted in the revised lower secondary curriculum. The skill of literary appreciation is developed alongside all the communication skills. Values learnt whether overtly as specified in the learning outcomes or gleaned covertly; shape the consciousness of the learner. Values such as empathy, kindness, integrity, respect and understanding of self, others and the environment are necessary outcomes of the study of literature. The multi-cultural society of Trinidad and Tobago benefits as students, through their exploration of literature and language, develop their critical thinking along with their capacity for cultural understanding.

The English Language Arts curriculum advocates an integrated approach to language and literacy learning and skills development. A lesson with a particular skill focus draws on the other Language Arts skills to make the learning intelligible. Twenty-first century language learners must communicate using ICTs. The infusion of information and communication technologies in English Language learning is therefore an asset. Students respond naturally and happily to technology as learning tools and as resources. There is synergy between the communication skills and the communication technologies. The revised English curriculum promotes meaningful use of ICTs in learning English and in producing and publishing print and multimodal texts. Through both responding to texts and creating new texts using a range of media, students increase their knowledge of language features, devices and structure along with their understanding of the purposes for and uses of language. Students also develop appreciation for the power of language in communication and for enjoyment.

Goals of the English Language Arts Curriculum

The main goal of the English Language Arts curriculum is to create confident students who can use and produce language effectively and who can negotiate multi-modal texts of increasing complexity. Their knowledge and control of language will empower them to function in the twenty-first century as competent and informed citizens of the democratic Republic of Trinidad and Tobago.

Students will:

- demonstrate proficiency in the skills of listening, speaking, reading, writing, and visual representation;
- use the communication skills as tools for learning across various disciplines
- use language for reflection;
- use language to communicate for a variety of purposes;
- respond critically and sensitively to a variety of literary and informational texts;
- appreciate the language and literature of different cultures;
- use language to demonstrate creative and critical thinking;
- become strategic thinkers, speakers, readers and writers.

Connections and Integration

A coherent view of relationships among the learner, the learning process, teaching, and language should inform everyday transformation within the classroom. Current views derived from language education research continue to call for the integration of the language arts. The claims are:

- The language arts skills are so strongly interrelated that no single skill can be taught in isolation
- The strands of language are so closely interwoven that speaking, listening, reading, writing and representing can emerge simultaneously in any one teaching and learning activity
- Communication is a dynamic complex of interdependent systems involving thinking, speaking, listening, reading, writing, and viewing
- Language is an ongoing meaning-making process
- Learning language is an integrated, holistic, interactive process
- Language growth and development is not a sequential, linear process

Language development and the attainment of conceptual comprehension are fundamental to development and achievement in other subject areas. The design of this document supports an interdisciplinary approach in which language and the development of the language skills undergird student performance across all the subject areas.

English Language Arts teachers are encouraged to draw from other subject areas, firstly, as a means of signalling to students the necessity for developing competence in language so as to negotiate texts in other disciplines. In addition, links with other subject areas help to ensure that students recognise that what counts as valid formal knowledge in different disciplines should not be compartmentalised but should be used as necessary to interpret, understand, and solve problems in the real world in which they live. The development of their language skills allows them, as human beings, to negotiate and add meaning to that world.

Content and Performance Standards

The content and performance standards represent the skills that are to be achieved at the end of the first three years at secondary school. The content standards identified below indicate the general knowledge and skills that students must develop as a result of teaching and learning activities. The performance standards provide benchmarks that indicate the extent to which students are satisfactorily applying language and demonstrating what they know and can do.

Listening & Speaking

Content Standard

Students listen, comprehend, and use verbal and non-verbal cues to effectively communicate with an audience.

Performance Standards

1. Students demonstrate ability to use skills and strategies of listening and speaking

- Use intonation, pausing, emphasis, and rhythm to speak with expression so as to convey meaning
- Use appropriate facial expressions, gestures, paralinguistics, body language, postures, proxemics, haptics and eye contact to support speech
- Distinguish basic stress and intonation patterns in oral language
- Identify mood, emotions and attitudes conveyed by pronunciation and stress patterns

2. Students demonstrate ability to pronounce words accurately

- Use sounds, stress and intonation patterns
- Integrate stress, intonation and rhythm when pronouncing
- Enunciate words clearly
- Detect mispronunciation and self-correct
- Identify the differences in vowel and consonant sounds
- Distinguish between Creole and Standard English phonology, morphology and syntax
- Code switch between Creole and Standard English in context

3. Students demonstrate ability to attend to, comprehend, and assimilate information

- Identify significant details
- Make connections between ideas
- Respond accurately in different communicative situations
- Respond with enjoyment to the cadence of language used for creative purposes

4. Students demonstrate ability to listen critically in different communicative situations

- Deduce bias

- Deduce propaganda or concealed agenda
- Detect fallacies
- Distinguish between facts and opinions
- Identify significant language cues in audio and audio-visual texts
- Analyse persuasion and argument in text
- Determine the purpose and distinguishing features of oral texts

Reading

Content Standard

Students read a variety of texts to gain information and knowledge; to appreciate themselves, others, and the cultures of the world; and to gain pleasure.

Performance Standards

1. Students read with fluency and comprehension

- Read accurately, quickly and with expression
- Read level-appropriate texts, fiction and non-fiction, with confidence
- Use, with facility, a variety of comprehension skills: literal, inferential, critical, and creative
- Recognise barriers to comprehension: internal text structures, vocabulary and sentence structure
- Monitor comprehension of their reading and use self-correcting strategies

2. Students use a range of strategies to derive meaning from texts

- Use knowledge of phonemic awareness and word structure to aid comprehension of texts
- Infer meaning of unfamiliar words by using context clues
- Use textual cues and organisation patterns to assist in comprehension of texts
- Use resources to discover the meaning, pronunciation, and derivation of unknown words

3. Students demonstrate an adequate level of analysis, synthesis, and evaluation in response to a variety of texts

- Interpret and analyse the relationship between language choice and author's purpose
- Explain and defend critical opinions of texts read
- Develop criteria for evaluation of text
- Develop critical language awareness

Literary Appreciation

Content Standard

Students interpret and respond to a range of genres with sensitivity to the writer's purpose and craft. Students read in order to understand self, to gain insight into the human condition, and to appreciate diverse cultures.

Performance Standards

1. Students read prose, poetry, and drama with fluency and comprehension

- Apply a variety of strategies to derive meaning from texts
- Discuss language, meaning, and ideas in various texts in relation to rhetorical purpose and audience
- Understand the defining characteristics of a variety of literary genres

2. Students apply knowledge of the elements of literature to derive optimal meaning from prose, poetry, and drama

- Examine the relationship between setting and structure
- Understand elements of plot development
- Demonstrate an understanding of how theme is generated
- Trace how conflict is developed and resolved
- Understand character development in text
- Make inferences about characters' qualities and actions
- Demonstrate an understanding of literary devices
- Demonstrate an understanding of narrative voice

3. Students analyse and evaluate prose, poetry, and drama

- Interpret and analyse the effectiveness of the use of the elements of different genres
- Compare and contrast techniques used by writers in different texts
- Respond to literary works clearly and coherently, using examples from texts read to support responses

4. Students respond to texts critically and with sensitivity

- Examine how writers use language in oral and written text to impact the listener/reader
- Examine author's purpose and intent
- Discuss meaning and ideas in texts, making connections between what they read and their personal experience and diverse cultures
- Demonstrate empathy with characters

5. Students use the study of literature to develop an understanding of the human condition

- Value characters in literary texts as representative of human thought, actions, and feelings
- Appreciate conflict as an integral part of life and as critical to understanding relationships
- Appreciate the importance of taking responsibility for one's actions
- Value the power of the written and spoken word

Writing

Content Standard

Students write for a range of different purposes, demonstrating sensitivity to audience, and using appropriate and grammatically correct language and organisational structures to effectively communicate thoughts, ideas, and feelings.

Performance Standards

1. Students demonstrate competence in the use of the writing process

- Decide on a form and general purpose for writing
- Use pre-writing skills
- Select appropriate content for different writing tasks
- Determine appropriate language
- Organize ideas coherently
- Revise and edit written compositions
- Present writing using a variety of media to enhance communication

2. Students manipulate language effectively for different communicative purposes

- Create a variety of expository forms
 - State purpose clearly
 - Gather relevant and accurate evidence/details
 - Use register, tone and voice appropriate to the intended audience and context
 - Use different organizational patterns within expository pieces
 - Integrate information to develop intelligible pieces
- Create a variety of persuasive/argumentative pieces
 - Determine clear position, target, audience, purpose
 - Gather reliable evidence to support a position
 - Use appropriate rhetorical devices
 - Develop ideas logically and coherently
- Produce a variety of narrative pieces

- Select forms that are suited to purpose
- Use descriptive and figurative language
- Use language to create imagery
- Use emotive language to communicate a range of feelings, moods and ideas
- Employ elements suited to different genres
- Create a variety of reflective pieces
 - Scrutinise personal experiences
 - Examine reactions and feelings
 - Evaluate the experience
 - Draw conclusions based on analysis
 - Use language to deepen reflection
 - Demonstrate critical reflection

3. Students demonstrate ability to respond critically to a variety of texts and writing tasks

- Distinguish between fact and opinion
- Identify problems and recommend solutions
- Compare and contrast ideas from a variety of texts
- Draw inferences and explain, in writing, inferences derived from a variety of texts
- Explain the importance of new understandings to self and others
- Respond to new learning in a variety of written forms

4. Students demonstrate competence in grammatical and mechanical conventions of writing

- Display competence in the mechanics of writing
- Demonstrate understanding of word origin, prefixes, suffixes, morphemes and spelling patterns
- Demonstrate competence in the use of the grammar of the English language

5. Students engage in research by generating questions, and evaluating and synthesizing information from different sources

- Decide on a focus for research
- Explore a variety of topics and ideas
- Determine time parameters for the research activity
- Examine sources of information
- Critique information and websites selected
- Collect and record information, utilizing a variety of strategies and tools
- Connect relevant ideas from research to support the development of texts

Media Literacy

Content Standard

Students interpret and produce a wide variety of oral and audio-visual text and become sensitive to the impact of visual and aural language in their social, national, and global environments.

Performance Standards

1. Students distinguish among the features of a wide range of oral and audio-visual text

- Identify the features of texts from different media
- Examine the functions served by the features in oral and audio-visual texts

2. Students demonstrate facility in using and creating oral and audio-visual texts to clarify, support, and generate ideas

- Use a variety of design elements to create oral and audio-visual texts
- Use a variety of oral and audio-visual texts for different communicative purposes

3. Students appraise the effectiveness of the content of oral and audio-visual texts to clarify, support, and generate ideas

- Evaluate the merits of the use of different forms of media
- Evaluate the impact of different forms of oral and audio-visual texts on audience

4. Demonstrate an awareness of the relationship between print and non-print texts

- Use visual stimuli to create other types of texts
- Relate print to non-print media in communicating ideas, thoughts, feelings

5. Demonstrate use of media for research

- Evaluate websites
- Evaluate information
- Use appropriate websites to conduct research

6. Demonstrate responsible use of social media

- Apply the conventions of netiquette
- Apply the principles of ethics in use and creation of media texts

Understanding the Curriculum Outcomes

Teachers would note that the curriculum content is presented differently from the previous Curriculum document. Outcomes in the different strands have been aligned to demonstrate how they can be developed concurrently. Samples of these intra-disciplinary learning experiences have been provided in lesson plans found in the Teacher's Guide.

Figure 1 illustrates how outcomes have been aligned across strands. Students are exposed to persuasion in Listening and Speaking, Reading, Literary Appreciation Writing and Media Literacy.

Suggested Teaching/Learning Strategies and Assessment Strategies are provided explicitly in the Teacher's Guide.

Conclusion

This revised English Language Arts Curriculum Guide documents the range of outcomes that students must attain on completion of the first level of secondary education, leading to assessment at the National Certificate of Secondary Education (NCSE) Level 1. The Curriculum Guide is intended to be used concurrently with the Teacher's Guide. The Content Framework with related Grammar and Spelling is presented purposely in both documents. Teachers will also find the accompanying Reading Literacy Support Guide of good use when planning lessons for students whose English and Reading literacy needs are pronounced.

In the Curriculum Guide, the Content Framework with related Grammar and Spelling mirrors the intended learning outcomes for each term in each year (Forms 1-3). This functions to direct teachers to the requisite learning outcomes per topic to be achieved through the development of the various literacy skills. Additionally, the outcomes have been organised with a greater degree of alignment to help teachers perceive the interrelated nature of the skills. The objectives to be achieved through each of the strands (listening, speaking, reading, writing, literary appreciation, and media literacy) have been aligned in such a way as to show connections that can be made in developing a unit of work.

The teaching of English grammar is compulsory. Teachers are to note that teaching grammar in isolation is discouraged strongly since this approach not improve students' understanding and application of grammar in writing and speaking. The related grammar and spelling in the Content Framework provides direction and suggestions for the teaching of grammar in context. This is intended to boost students' understanding and use of grammar and spelling as their literacy skills develop.

The Teacher's Guide is a complement to the Curriculum Guide. It includes a range of teaching and learning instructional support materials inclusive of suggested teaching/learning strategies and suggested assessment strategies. Teachers are expected to ensure that students attain the outcomes of the curriculum by using the additional support materials found in the Teacher's Guide. Additionally, the Content Framework with related Grammar and Spelling is linked to and prefaces the additional support materials. Teachers are not limited to the materials presented in the Teacher's Guide and are also encouraged to explore other ways of using both Guides that can contribute to making student learning meaningful. For example, teachers may use a thematic approach that draws on students' interests, thus ensuring student engagement to improve teaching and learning.

For the students whose English and Reading literacy skills need stronger scaffolding, the revised curriculum presents the Reading Literacy Support Guide that targets specifically reading comprehension, vocabulary and word study skills. This segment of the curriculum advocates systematic and explicit skills development in the three areas in order to bridge the gaps and better prepare students to access the entire English Language Arts programme.
